

NORTHERN BLUES FOREST COLLABORATIVE FIELD TOUR

Lower Joseph Project
Wednesday, July 22nd | 8:30am – 4:00pm

Join the Northern Blues Forest Collaborative for a full-day field tour to the Lower Joseph Project Area on the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest, Wallowa Mountains Ranger District.

Participants will gain a firsthand look at how restoration projects are planned, implemented, and adapted to meet ecological, operational, and economic objectives. Along the way, we'll discuss the decisions, tradeoffs, and partnerships that shape restoration work on the ground.

THIS TOUR WILL:

- ▶ Provide insight into the tree-marking process and challenges
- ▶ Examine the challenges of implementation, including changing timber markets, contractor capacity, and evolving practices.
- ▶ See the effects of a prescribed burn one year post-implementation

*Please bring water, lunch, and appropriate clothes and footwear; the tour will include a fair amount of walking on uneven surfaces. If you need special accommodations, please note those in the registration link below.

Transportation and parking are limited; please RSVP at:

NORTHERNBLUESCOLLABORATIVE.ORG/EVENTS

The Northern Blues Forest Collaborative brings together people with different experiences, interests, and perspectives to support healthier forests and more resilient communities across the Northern Blue Mountains, and is hosting these conversations to help create space for thoughtful community dialogue about the future of these landscapes.